

Meetings on the Shores of Lake Travis At Lakeway Resort and Spa

People in glass meeting spaces shouldn't throw rocks. At Lakeway Resort and Spa, that would be anyone attending a meeting in the property's new 5,200 square-foot glass-enclosed ballroom. But that does not stop the resort from throwing perfectly rockin' meetings, retreats and conferences.

Perfectly situated on a peninsula adjacent to the marina and sporting spectacular, 180-degree views of Lake Travis, in Austin, Texas, the legendary Lakeway Resort and Spa has just completed a $15 million redevelopment. Central to the new construction is the "Glass Ballroom," which features walls of floor-to-ceiling windows overlooking the lake and new swimming pools, a full-service spa and fitness center and additional meeting spaces.

Also new to the property is Lakeway's inimitable Scent of a Meeting. Utilizing air diffusers loaded with a synergistic blend of peppermint, black pepper and sandalwood aromatherapy oils, Lakeway's meeting rooms promote creative thought and keep attendees alert. The peppermint oil produces an overall feeling of physical and emotional well-being, while stimulating the mind; the black pepper improves circulation, increasing and oxygenating blood flow; the sandalwood oil is helpful in freeing the mind.
